

POITÍN LIST

Poitin, Potcheen or Poteen, pronounced “puh-cheen,” is a traditional Irish spirit with a varied and sometimes dramatic history. Poitín has a heritage that predates recorded history, making it one of the world’s oldest distilled beverages. The origins of Poitín can be traced back to the medieval monasteries where monks first experimented with distilling grains and fruits. Over the centuries, Poitín evolved from a clandestine, homemade spirit brewed in small copper pot stills to a symbol of Irish rebellion during times of political turmoil. Its production was banned in the 17th century, driving it underground, yet it remained an essential part of Irish culture and heritage. Since its legalisation in 1997, Poitín has experienced a renaissance, now produced legally with a focus on preserving its traditional character. Poitín is a unique and cherished spirit.
